

H-Bomb Test This Summer Expected By Many Observers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—Many observers here are convinced today that the United States will detonate a hydrogen bomb this summer for the first time in human history as the result of successful experiments in atomic explosions at Frenchman's Creek, Nev., the last two weeks.

Wide speculation about the H-bomb follows the disclosure by Atomic Energy Commissioner Sumner T. Pike that the five atomic blasts near Las Vegas proved "certain calculations" which will make deadly weapons tests at Eniwetok easier, cheaper and more certain of success.

Six months of planning went into the experiments and the series of explosions were reliably reported to have touched off five different uses of the A-bomb.

Civilian experts say that one of the explosions was to determine the ability of the atomic bomb's intense heat flash to act as a "trigger" for setting off the hydrogen bomb.

It is generally assumed that any H-bomb blast would be set off at the Pacific atoll because the devastating shock would be too great if unleashed anywhere within the Continental United States.

The Defense Department's Joint Task Force No. 3, numbering more than 10,000 men, has been quietly preparing since early 1950 for the big weapons tests at Eniwetok.

Pike said he can only "encourage speculation" that the Nevada blasts involved a type of ground-launched atomic artillery that the Army is known to be seeking for tactical use against enemy troops.

Pike also made these other points:

1. He does not accept recently published statements that H-bombs can be "rigged" to wipe out humanity. He said there is a vast difference between theoretical and practical possibilities.
2. The first atomic submarine motor is under construction at Arco, Ida., and may be put into operation by the end of this year.
3. The first experimental atomic power plant, also being built at Arco, is about 70 percent complete and may be ready for its first test in April or May.

Pike, a rangy New Englander who is regarded as AEC's most articulate member in translating atomic energy into non-scientific terms, concluded that the Las Vegas tests cannot be discussed publicly without revealing vital information.

Pike said:

"I have been trying to think how we could tell the public what we were doing out there at Las Vegas without giving away vital information, and I have about decided that it can't be done.

"The only thing we can do is to indicate something of the nature of our problem, and how the Las Vegas tests help to solve that problem."

Pike observed that even the commissioners and the scientists differ in their views of what constitutes a successful experiment.

The commissioner said the scientists would settle for an experiment about 50 percent successful. They would consider a 90 percent chance as "no experiment at all because results are too certain" and 20 percent as an abortive effort.

With a $30 million outlay at Eniwetok, Pike said, the AEC has "to be much more certain of the results we will get than the scientist would like to be."

Pike added:

"The Las Vegas tests help us to be more certain, and that makes a big difference in terms of men and money."

But regardless of cost, Pike said, the commission intends to conduct periodic atomic tests, and explained:

"Of course, we are continually devising various types of weapons, and, in doing so, we have to pile assumption on top of assumption as to what the results will be."

"Pretty soon we are like a man who is standing on top of a nail keg placed on a chair on top of a table. Our position is precarious, and we have to conduct experiments to see if we are right."

Solon Says Put Soviets On Spot With Disarm Plan

Vermonters Enter Great Debate; Seeks To List 'All' Weapons

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—Sen. Flanders, (R) Vt., proposed today that the United States put Russia on the spot by offering a United Nations-controlled disarmament plan covering all weapons, not just the A-bomb.

Flanders declared in a Senate speech that this country "cannot lose" in thus broadening the Baruch Plan for atomic control to include all weapons above small arms needed for internal control. It would stress the right of inspection.

The senator said:

"If it is accepted, we and the whole world win a disarmed peace. If it is rejected, the Soviet government stands convicted before the eyes of the world without a single excuse for its rejection of peace."

Flanders said the plan should not be offered as an "ultimatum" but be made a "permanent exhibit" and proclaimed constantly so that "the world's warmongers" can never forget it.

FLANDERS' STATEMENT

was the latest added to the foreign policy debate, centered mainly on the question of committing additional U.S. troops to Europe's defense.

Democratic opponents of a congressional limit on the number of troops going abroad won a GOP backer in Sen. Wiley, (R) Wis., ranking minority member of the Foreign Relations Committee. Wiley said he thought the Supreme Court would hold a limit unconstitutional.

But he urged that the Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees, meeting jointly this week in public hearings on the question, ask former President Herbert Hoover to testify.

Sen. Connally, (D) Tex., Foreign Relations chairman, said he wouldn't invite Hoover, but if someone else did or he showed up he would be heard.

Connally and Wiley both argued that the question of size of the troop commitment to Europe is a decision for the military and the executive branch. The GOP member said flatly he would be guided by their "primary right of judgment."

Wiley took an opposite position from that of his party's Senate leaders, Sens. Taft, (R) Ohio, and Wherry, (R) Neb.

Taft suggested a ratio of one American division for each nine European divisions and proposed that not more than 20 percent of U.S. land forces or 10 percent of its air forces be stationed in Europe in peacetime.

GOV. THOMAS E. Dewey took issue with other Republican leaders last night by declaring the U.S. must establish joint air-sea-ground defenses in Europe. (Continued on Page Two)

6 Pet. Price Hike Ahead

DiSalle Says Level Due In Summer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—Price Stabilizer Michael DiSalle predicted today that prices will rise at least six percent before they level off "about midsummer."

DiSalle also said that he anticipated "some pretty good rollbacks" in some fields, but that rollback presented a special problem. The price stabilizer declared that price freezes "create some inequities," and added:

"Now if you roll them back, all you do is compound those inequities, besides giving yourself a lot of administrative problems."

"There is a question that if you roll back prices you roll back wages too, at the same time. There would be quite a disturbance if you said, 'we'll roll back wages to 1946.'"

The former Toledo mayor said, however, that it would be "much easier to control wages" with price control.

DISALLE DISAGREED with "some of the economists who say that maybe in five months we'll have a three-point (price) rise. I think it's going to be higher than that." He "guessed" that the rise under controls would be "five or six percent, or even more."

DiSalle concluded:

"I want to be very careful not to give people the impression that they're going to start paying 1946 prices right away and still make 1951 wages."

"That isn't in the cards—and I think many people are getting that idea and that they think of price controls as a device for saving money."

"But it just doesn't operate that way. We're just trying to hold it so it won't cost them more in the future."

Plenty Of Water But No Drinking

COLUMBIA, Pa., Feb. 12—There was water, water nearly everywhere as new ice jams threatened to raise the Susquehanna river to flood-level today but in Columbia, on the river's edge, there was scarcely a drop to drink.

Drinking water was rationed to one quart per person as the 12,000 residents of the borough were confronted with the paradox of too much and too little water.

A five mile ice-jam raised the river to 17 feet above normal last week and flooded the Columbia Co.'s waterworks.

New Avalanches Rip Alps, Bury Two Villages

GENEVA, Feb. 12—Thundering avalanches poured down the Swiss Alps today, killing at least four persons, burying 27 others alive and partially destroying two villages.

The latest slides were caused by new snow falling on already frozen and snow-packed surfaces and were similar to the recent series of avalanches in Switzerland, Austria and France that caused more than 200 deaths.

One giant snowslide nearly 200 yards wide crashed down on the little Alpine town of Airolo where four are known dead and 11 others are believed trapped under the wreckage of their smashed homes.

Further south, another cascade of snow struck the isolated village of Frasco some 20 miles from Locarno, destroying houses and completely burying the town's church except for the very top of the bell tower.

At Airolo the massive snow fall thundered down the mountainside with a roar that could be heard for miles, smashing houses as if they were matchboxes and destroying the village school before coming to a halt beside a church.

OSU Delays Coach Pick

Too Many Trustees Fail To Appear

COLUMBUS, Feb. 12—Ohio State university's board of trustees failed today to select a new Buckeye football coach because "enough board members were not present to make the selection."

The board issued the following statement, read by Publicity Director William Wilcox at 12:25 p. m.:

"Because three members of the board have found it impossible to be present at today's meeting and feeling that a matter of this importance should have the consideration of a larger representation from the board, a special meeting has been called for Sunday afternoon, Feb. 18, at 4 p. m."

Board members refused to comment upon any discussion or action taken at their three-hour session.

It had been reported unofficially that Woody Hayes, the head coach at Miami university, had been recommended by the university's athletic board for the post vacated by Wesley Fessler.

However, there was no confirmation of the rumor from any of the trustees and it was believed. (Continued on Page Two)

3,500 Homeless In Northwest

SEATTLE, Feb. 12—More than 3,500 persons are homeless today in the wake of floods that cost 10 lives as it ripped through dikes in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia.

Seven of the dead were counted in Washington and Oregon, and the other three in British Columbia after the levees along the Skagit river gave way.

In Western Washington, at least 2,500 were homeless, and the number of persons forced from their homes in British Columbia totaled 1,000.

'ARABIAN NIGHTS' CEREMONY IS READ

Splendor Of East Still In Evidence As Shah Of Iran Takes A New Wife

TEHRAN, Feb. 12—The Shah of Iran was married in a colorful "Arabian Nights" ceremony today to beautiful 18-year-old Soraya Esfandiari in Tehran's green-tinted marble palace.

Because of the international situation, some of the more lavish plans to celebrate the event were cancelled. The Shah also dropped plans for a 21-gun salute and a fly-past of fighter planes while the marriage was in progress.

But the splendor of the East still was in evidence in the lovely costumes and solemn rites.

Soraya, whose name means "star," became the second wife of the Shah, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, in a Moslem ritual that was witnessed only by members of the royal family and the bride's family, plus a few government and diplomatic representatives.

It was only at the last minute that the Shah ordered curtailment of many of the festivities that were to mark his marriage to the lovely daughter of a wealthy tribal chieftain.

These were to have included vast fireworks exhibits in all the public square, parades and dances.

The hour for signing of the marriage contract also was changed from early morning until late afternoon.

As dawn broke, Iranian awoke to find the Elburz Mountains and Tehran itself covered with snow which the Shah's Moslem followers hailed as a good omen.

Despite the comparative "austerity" of the occasion, Tehran was gay with flags, bunting and flowers, and at the palace there was a satisfactory modern rendition of the Arabian nights.

Hundreds of princes, high ranking nobility and their emissaries gathered in the various reception rooms while the intimate ceremonies of signing the marriage document were carried out.

Invited guests included Actress Rita Hayworth, her Moslem husband, Prince Aly Khan, and Aly's father, the immensely wealthy Aga Khan and his French-born Begum.

The ceremonies began when the Shah's sisters, Ashraf and Shams, called on the bride at her fashionable home on Roosevelt Avenue.

From there she was driven to the palace in a gold-plated Rolls Royce along a route lined with an honor guard of soldiers.

On her arrival at the palace, Soraya first was greeted by the Shah's three brothers, Princes Ali, Ghulam and Abador, the premier of Iran and more than 10 government officials.

Six girls carried her bridal train as she mounted the steps leading to the palace Hall of Mirrors, where she was welcomed by the Shah and the queen mother.

The young ruler of Iran was in his state uniform which glittered with decorations. He and his bride then led a family procession, which included six Bakhtiari tribal chieftains, to the Ivory Room where the marriage ceremony was performed.

Soraya's women attendants wore gowns of pastel shades, while the men were in uniform or wore formal dress with full decorations.

Her fabulous gifts reportedly included a sable coat from Premier Joseph Stalin, estimated to be worth $150,000. There were silver candelabra from King George of England, a crystal vase from President Truman and a fortune in jewels from her husband and Arabian royalty.

Soraya met the Shah at a dance in Paris in 1948. Their engagement was announced on Oct. 10, 1948, two years after the Iranian ruler divorced his first wife, Fawza, sister of Egypt's King Farouk.

Wonju Believed Goal Of Communists

TOKYO, Feb. 13—(Tuesday)—A mounting offensive by possibly 40,000 Chinese and North Korean Red troops on the Central Korean front drove Allied forces back as much as seven and one half miles Monday and threatened today to split the United Nations trans-Korea line.

The enemy counter blow drove a wedge between Allied forces besieging Seoul in the west and those advancing north of the 38th Parallel on the east coast.

Strong units of the counter-attacking enemy forces, including large numbers of fresh reserves, infiltrated behind UN lines.

They drove into the road center of Hoengsong, north of Wonju, where hand-to-hand street fighting was reported still in progress.

Allied troops also were described as "hard pressed" to hold the town of Chipyong, 20 miles west of Hoengsong, another key "peg" of the UN line in the central sector.

ENEMY RESISTANCE also increased in the Seoul area. A Republic of Korea patrol was driven back from the city by heavy small arms fire late Monday afternoon.

An American Army officer who flew over the capital reported seeing enemy troops walking the streets. At dusk the Communists shelled the Allied-held industrial suburb of Yongdungpo with guns from within Seoul.

Bill To Draft Strikers Gaining Support In House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—"Work or be drafted" action against strikers in defense industries gathered power today in the House.

An amendment to pending legislation, or a separate bill to draft strikers, is being discussed by members of the Armed Services Committee, now working on new manpower legislation. The move also is under consideration in other influential House circles.

Sentiment has not yet jelled, but a key Southern Democratic congressman told a newsman that "the chances are 9 to 1 that such an amendment will be offered." He added that if it came to a vote, "not more than 30 votes would be cast against it."

Rep. Andrews, (D) Ala., a member of the House Appropriations Committee, has already introduced a bill making men deferred because they hold essential defense jobs "immediately available" for induction if they stop work.

Andrews said he will probably broaden his bill to include strikers who do not fall within the present 19 through 25 draft age and offer it as an amendment to the manpower bill when it reaches the floor.

Andrews told a newsman: "I'm for anything that will keep them on the job."

Acting independently of Andrews, several highly influential Southern Democrats are now discussing taking similar action.

If they decide to back such an amendment, they may offer it themselves and thus increase the chances of its adoption.

There is some question whether such an amendment would be considered germane, that is, permissible under the terms of the bill.

If ruled out of order by the chair, it could not be voted upon, unless the sponsor appealed the ruling and was upheld by the House.

The labor situation existing at the time of the bill's consideration will play an important part in any action taken. If a major strike is underway, there is apt to be an overwhelming demand in the House for a strikers' draft.

Mac Wants All The Men He Can Get In Korea

TOKYO, Feb. 12—Informed sources in Tokyo said today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur wants all the American troops he can get to reinforce the U.S. Eighth Army in Korea.

A high official close to the United Nations commander denied that MacArthur had requested 50,000 as had been reported, or any other specific number of reinforcements. The official said:

"He wants all he can get."

In Washington, an official spokesman said that the Army "is sending replacements to General MacArthur as fast as we can," but he declined to discuss numbers.

There is also a strong unofficial feeling among American observers in Tokyo that it would be wiser to send troops to Asia where the fighting is now raging, rather than to Europe, where a defensible position is not expected to be attained for two years.

MacArthur has not taken a public position on the debate. The official who said that the general wants all the troops he can get for Korea said of this question:

"The general has enough on his hands in Asia without getting involved in a controversy about Europe."

Foe Chalks Gains Of 7 1/2 Miles

Reds were believed to be using Russian-made 122 millimeter guns.

There were intermittent artillery and mortar fire exchanges across the Han river throughout Monday.

Kimpo airfield, 15 miles northwest of Seoul, was cleared by Allied engineering units and light planes were landing. The main landing strip was under repairs. Activity dwindled in Allied-seized Inchon, the port of Seoul.

The brunt of the powerful attack by the enemy in the central sector was borne by ROK troops. The assault was ominously similar to the Chinese November offensive which hit the "soft" center of the Allied Congchon river line and forced a peninsula-wide retreat.

WONJU, WHERE Allied troops halted their retreat, appears now to be the number one Chinese objective. Capture of Wonju in strength would put the Communists in a position to swing wide to the west along the Wonju-Suwon highway and threaten the entire U.S. First Corps now standing in front of Seoul.

The surprising intensity of the new Communist counter attack indicates they may now have been able to bring in needed supplies, guns and fresh men.

However, the possibility of an improvised and desperate Red attack was indicated by reports that large numbers of Chinese troops scheduled to defend Seoul were sped eastward and are now forming the bulk of the force thrown into the central front attack.

The giant offensive was launched at 10 o'clock Sunday night along the entire 30-mile central front. An Eighth Army communique said elements of three Chinese armies in conjunction with two North Korean corps launched the attack.

A U.S. Tenth Corps spokesman said the Reds were pouring fresh troops into every engagement all along the line and that some small units were fighting Reds to their front, rear and both sides.

HE ADDED THAT according to latest reports some units were surrounded and cut off by the infiltrating North Koreans and Chinese.

The spokesman said the Chinese troops from Seoul had joined the North Korean Second and Fifth Corps in mounting the attacks in the central sector and described the offensive as "very similar" to the beginning of the Chongchon river offensive in November.

The Red attack was launched just after other South Korean troops had lunged across the 38th Parallel of Korea's east coast and captured a small town five miles north of the boundary.

The ROKs reported only scattered resistance as they plunged northward with the aid of strong United Nations naval support. The UN navy a week ago helped the South Koreans break the resistance of three Red battalions that had stalled the northward drive at Kangnung, 18 miles below the boundary.

Memorial Lake Still Planned, Sportsmen Told

Pickaway County sportsmen were told Saturday that the proposed Memorial Lake and Park in Devil's Backbone east of Circleville definitely will be constructed in the future.

Sportsmen Robert Wolfe and L. H. Mebs of Circleville and Pickaway County Game Protection to Clarence Francis were given that assurance Saturday during a League of Ohio sports meeting in Columbus.

A. W. Marion, formerly of Circleville and head of the Ohio department of conservation told the sportsmen that the lake definitely will be completed in the future.

"He told us that the present dam is absolutely unsafe," Wolf said, "and that an estimated $200,000 more will be needed to complete it."

Marion also told the sportsmen that the present dam needs about five feet more freeboard at the top and that the spillway will have to be strengthened.

He added that at present the spillway would release waters from the lake onto lands which are not state-owned.

In an earlier report, V. M. Flickinger, director of parks for the conservation department, said the only apparent solution at that time was that the dam would have to be torn down and reconstructed. The present dam was erected at a cost of about $250,000.

Big Debate Still Rages

ope and Congress has no power to forbid it.

The New York governor thus differed from Hoover who counseled against sending American ground forces to Europe. Hoover advocated a buildup of air and sea strength.

Dewey also split with Taft who declared that no additional troops should be sent abroad without specific congressional approval.

Dewey urged sending more ground troops to Europe to guard against Soviet aggression and aid:

"If we were to stop it now it would destroy all the magnificent progress of the last three months. It would discourage the nations which are now arming themselves at great sacrifices, and it would mean to Russia that we had decided to abandon Europe and let it fall like a rotten apple into Stalin's hands."

Commenting on Hoover's suggestion that the U.S. place its reliance on strengthened sea and air forces, Dewey said this would be "the utmost folly." He declared:

"We must have very large air and naval forces, but we must also have large ground forces. Wars are decided by who controls the land. Anyone who thinks you can defend the U.S. or any substantial portion of the world with any two of the three branches of the armed forces is ignoring every lesson of history."

Home Near Fox Postoffice Hit By Third Fire

A four-room frame house on the Florence Chapel Pike near Fox Postoffice was destroyed by flames early Monday.

Circleville's rural fire truck was alerted of the blaze at about 3:35 a. m. by a truck driver, who said he noticed the flames from more than two miles away on Route 56.

The home was owned by Charles Bolender of East Franklin street, authorities said, and was occupied by James Davis.

Davis, employed in Columbus, told authorities he had stopped at the house shortly after midnight and had added coal to the stove before joining his wife at her father's home in Circleville.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said the home had already fallen in when he arrived with the rural truck, and all of the household goods was destroyed in the blaze.

Loss in the fire was estimated at about $4,000, some of which was covered by insurance. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Chief Wise said Monday's blaze was the third in the farm home in the last seven years. Wise said the first fire occurred in 1942, while the second occurred last Summer. Both earlier blazes were extinguished by firemen.

Localite Felled By Gas Fumes

Robert Eccard, 20, of Circleville, was reported in serious condition Monday in University hospital, Columbus, after he had been found unconscious Saturday in his apartment near Ohio State university.

Eccard, former star basketball player for Circleville high school, and his roommate were found overcome by gas last Saturday in the apartment they shared near the university campus.

Rescue efforts rallied Eccard's companion, although the Circleville lad has not yet recovered. He is in room A-108 in the Columbus hospital.

Eccard is the son of Mrs. Daniel Eitel of East Mound street.

3 Columbusites Pay Fines Here

Three Columbus motorists were fined a total of $45 and costs last weekend in the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller on two accusations of assault and battery.

Wynkoop was fined $25 and costs for assault and battery against Grace Ann Stewart and $25 and costs for assault and battery against Charles Pennington.

Officials said Wynkoop struck Pennington with a bottle while the trio was on West Main street late Saturday.

Hugh Varney and Charles Newton were fined $10 and costs each for minor infractions. Varney was fined for driving without an operator's license and Newton was fined for passing in a non-passing zone.

Bural Patterson was fined $25 and costs in the court for reckless operation.

All three motorists were arrested on Route 23 by State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells.

ed possible that a last-minute deadlock might have developed.

A "SECRET" nomination for the new gridiron pilot earlier got an announced unanimous vote of approval from the special selection committee and athletic board.

The special screening committee gave the unidentified candidate a unanimous vote of approval as did the 12-man athletic board.

Approval of the choice must be made by the board of trustees.

Four members of the seven-man trustee panel present today were:

Don C. Power and Carleton S. Dargusch, Columbus attorneys; Lockwood Thompson, Cleveland attorney; and Barr G. Forrest Ketner, of the Ohio Farm Bureau, Columbus.

Three absentees are Warner Pomerene, Coshocton attorney; Charles F. Kettering of Dayton, and U. S. Sen. John W. Bricker, who is speaking on the West Coast today.

A decision will conclude a two-month quest for a Buckeye grid mentor to succeed Fesler who resigned Dec. 9 and later accepted the job as head coach at the University of Minnesota.

High on the "probable new coach" list in no particular order loomed the names of Pro Cleveland Browns Miracle Man Paul Brown, Massillon high school's magician, Chuck Mahler, and Miami university's wonder, Hayes.

Whether the Hollywood production-like search for Ohio's 19th head grid mentor will definitely end Feb. 18 is almost a certainty, but Athletic Director Dick Larkins reminded observers there was always the possibility the board of trustees might flatly reject the recommendation received.

Officials said Wynkoop struck Pennington with a bottle while the trio was on West Main street late Saturday.</

Examination Costs Man $25

CHICAGO, Feb. 12—Seventy-year-old Abe Duncan told Chicago police today he was walking along, minding his business when a car containing two women and a man pulled up at the curb.

One woman jumped out and exclaimed: "You look sick. Maybe I can help you."

Before he could say a word, Duncan said, she began tapping his chest, looking at his tongue, and one thing and another.

Finally she decided "I guess you're all right," returned to the car and drove off.

Duncan examined himself before he moved on.

His wallet and $25 were missing.

Bill Would Give State Patrol Big Powers In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Feb. 12—A bill to give the state highway patrol almost full police powers has been introduced in the Ohio house of representatives by Rep. John Lynch (D-Mahoning).

The measure, which would give "concurrent jurisdiction with the sheriff or other peace officers," had only one major limitation. That was that patrolmen could not be used in connection with a strike or labor dispute.

Lynch said the patrol would have to be expanded considerably if it were to do much in the way of criminal or gambling investigation, but that it could be used for "extraordinary work such as closing down the Jungle Inn, Colony Club, Mounds Club or Pettibone Club."

The four resorts have been targets of Governor Lausche's anti-gambling crusade. Lynch commented: "If Governor Lausche is looking for an effective way to circumvent lax sheriffs who won't enforce the gambling laws in their counties, this is it. If the sheriffs won't enforce the laws, send the state highway patrol into the county to clean up the county."

"Too often the sheriff's office is a political football and selection of deputy sheriffs is made on the basis of political accomplishments rather than any ability in law enforcement. The state highway patrol has the advantage of trained personnel selected on a non-political basis."

The National Gas Shortage

What We Are Doing About It In Your Community and How You Can Help

The whole country has been experiencing an almost unprecedented cold wave. Gas wells, even in Texas, have frozen and become unworkable. Millions of people have suffered.

The Columbia Gas System and your gas company are doing everything possible to get more gas to you. As soon as we can squeeze another cubic foot out of our pipes, you'll get it.

Every man in the gas industry is working with every means in his power to bring more gas to you.

Gas for industrial and commercial purposes has been drastically curtailed in order to provide the utmost gas for you.

In the meantime, here's how you, too, can help.

1. Shut off heat in and close every possible spare room.

2. Keep room temperatures at a very minimum.

3. Postpone any washing, laundering or ironing requiring use of gas.

4. Use cooking ranges as little as possible—not for room-heating purposes.

What Caused This Gas Shortage In Your Area?

1. Average temperatures are running 8 to 10 degrees below normal.

2. Over 12 billion cubic feet of gas expected from suppliers in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma were not received due to unavoidably delayed construction of pipelines from those areas.

3. The war in Korea caused industrial requirements alone to run at over 50,000,000 cubic feet per day more than expected.

4. Therefore, our gas stored underground is over 30 billion cubic feet less than needed.

5. Because of the railroad strike we have been unable to replenish immediately our supplies of propane gas, used for just such emergencies. These are now near exhaustion.

These are the conditions, all beyond our control, which have caused your local gas shortage.

WRITTEN TREASURE

IN THE course of a few weeks, two American universities have become the beneficiaries of great literary estates. Yale, under his will, is to get all of Sinclair Lewis' manuscripts, books, papers and pictures. Princeton has received the manuscripts and letters of F. Scott Fitzgerald, and now Booth Tarkington's widow has sent to Princeton, in accordance with her husband's wish, similar material.

There is a special sentimental significance to these gifts, inasmuch as the three authors were undergraduates of their respective colleges. Insufficient time has elapsed since the death of Lewis for his collection to reach New Haven. Therefore its nature and extent is unknown. But Tarkington and Fitzgerald were indefatigable savers of their manuscripts, correspondence and other memorabilia, so what Princeton has received is of the widest scope and volume.

These are treasures not so much in the financial sense, as for their present working value for students. To see how successful authors wrote, changed, rewrote and put in final shape their stories cannot fail to be instructive. The manuscript is more enduring than the printed word. The writing accomplishments of the three donors will be held in pride and honor at the two universities which gave them so much.

PRICE-FIXING NO CUREALL

NO MATTER how reassuring it may sound to some of those concerned over the rising cost of living, it is already apparent government price control will not bring all the relief hoped for. The housewife will discover, to her disappointment, that prices of many articles of food as well as clothing will continue an upward tendency despite controls.

Under the law which controls the actions of any price-fixing agency, ceilings on farm products cannot be fixed lower than parity, or the highest price in the 30 days before the nation became involved in Korea last June.

Reduced to a simple equation, the government can attempt to fix retail prices at the grocery store, but it cannot do anything about what the retailer pays for his supplies which originate on the farm. If he is compelled to pay more, his customers will find that they must pay more, too—or do without the commodity in question.

The government may attempt to solve the problem by paying subsidies to farmers, as it did in World War II. Washington master minds admit they do not hope to put permanent ceilings on prices, merely hope to flow inflation.

At any rate, price-fixing will not be a cureall. It is a palliative which politicians have prescribed.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

As the years pass, Abraham Lincoln is not being remembered as the President who controlled our destinies during the Civil War, nor even as the President who issued the Emancipation Proclamation.

Rather do Washington and Lincoln stand high above all the men who have sat in the President's chair, and their greatness lies in their selfless devotion to the nation. It is said that President Truman has taken Jackson as his model, which is unfortunate because it can only justify in his own mind a cantankerousness that approaches a distorted ego. Franklin D. Roosevelt employed no model, for he was his own model.

Lincoln could not have understood disloyalty. Even as we today are faced by disloyalty, by those who can and do serve an enemy, overtly and in secret, so was he faced with the same problem. In a proclamation, issued on March 10, 1863, he said:

"Where evil-disposed and disloyal persons at sundry places have enticed and procured soldiers to desert and absent themselves from their regiments, thereby weakening the strength of the armies and prolonging the war, giving aid and comfort to the enemy, and cruelly exposing the gallant and faithful soldiers remaining in the ranks to increased hardships and danger:

"I do therefore call upon all patriotic and faithful citizens to oppose and resist the aforementioned dangerous and treasonable crimes, and to aid in restoring to their regiments all soldiers absent without leave, and to assist in the execution of the act of the Congress 'for enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes,' and to support the proper authorities in the prosecution and punishment of offenders against said act and in suppressing the insurrection and rebellion."

He called upon the people to aid in this, whereas in our era disloyalty has become so much a political issue that the executive branch of the government has consistently since 1934, when the Harold Ware Communist Cell was organized, aided, defended, protected and whitewashed the disloyal.

It is not only a matter of Alger Hiss and William W. Remington, who was convicted on Wednesday of last week, after having been cleared on several occasions by so-called loyalty boards. It is much more than that. It is a general attitude that loyalty is a private matter and that high public officials, even in so important an agency as the State Department, may have private judgment as to whether the United States must be preserved as a sovereign state or shall become absorbed in some vast international congeries of states which live upon its strength while humiliating and shaming its traditions and conduct.

Lincoln would not have tolerated disloyalty. And even in his proclamation pardoning all who had taken up arms against this government and restoring to them their property, except slaves, he still insisted upon a loyalty oath, to wit:

If war comes, without price controls, you can expect an inflation that will be an inflation.

Protecting the free nations of the earth will cost money and the tax levy will inevitably rise.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

MISS SMYTH gave Gamadge a bright unamused smile when he asked why her small party had been cancelled. "Oh, no, but Susie didn't want to come out in the rain, and she hasn't been able to have anybody while her aunt was here sick, and they have a game room downstairs."

"But what happened to the chicks at salad and stuff at your house?" asked Gamadge, reacting no doubt as she had hoped. She had spoken out of the bitterness of a burdened heart, and she had to go on.

"Lobster. It was just a buffet supper, and we were getting it ourselves—my brother and I were. The woman that works for us is out—it's her night off."

"Lobster for four and trimmings? That can mean a lot of fixing," said Gamadge, shocked.

"Oh well, Sam can eat a good deal of it."

"Hanged if I blame him for staying home for it. Of all the nerve," said Gamadge, his eyes on the couple opposite.

"Oh well, it doesn't matter."

"In my day it would have been called very bad manners."

"Oh, it just happened; Jim wouldn't think—it wouldn't make any difference at the Waterton house."

"Susie Coldfield ought to know better."

"She wouldn't think either; it wouldn't be much fun down at our house, just playing cards, the four of us. They have darts in the game room. Susie likes to jump around on the spur of the moment, you know, not keep tied down to anything."

"That's a silly pose, old stuff."

"They have a little roulette wheel downstairs."

"I gather," said Gamadge, after they had done some eating in silence, "that the four of you are on pretty easy terms—old friends and neighbors?"

"Yes, we always knew the Watertons and the Coldfields. Our house is right in Cliffside village."

"Must be very pleasant up here in summer—tennis, golf, everything."

"Sam and I haven't so much time any more. Sam's in medical school at Columbia, and Grandpa got me a job as receptionist in a doctor's office—three doctors, in fact."

"Shouldn't think you'd have time to eat, if you do all the appointments and everything."

"I keep the books, too; I had a course."

Another silence, which Gamadge broke. "Your brother was absolutely right; I don't know why you bothered to come."

"I had to; everybody knows Sam and what he's like, but if I'd refused—I think it would have hurt their feelings."

Their eyes met again, hers black and bold.

"People get absorbed," he said, "at certain times in their lives."

"Yes, but I wish I'd had time to dress."

"You were cracking those lobster. Nobody really dressed, on account of me. I hadn't meant to stay for dinner."

"Oh, is that why Susie didn't dress?" She gave him the bright smile. "I rather wondered."

"Wonder not, nor admire not. Take things as they come, and if possible shoot them back."

"You're very nice, aren't you?" Miss Smyth sat back as Agnes removed her plate.

"Me? No. Not particularly."

"I don't see why Susie never mentioned you before."

"She never heard of me before. I'm a friend of Mrs. Glendon Coldfield's. I just came up to get some luggage for her."

She looked greatly surprised. "Oh—are you?" And as her desert was put down, she asked, her eyes lowered, "where is she?"

"Mrs. Glendon Coldfield? You a friend of hers?"

"I liked her very much; but of course she hardly knew me. I was sorry she had to go to the sanatorium."

"Your grandfather tell you about it?"

"Oh no, Susie did. He never talks about his cases. I just wondered where she's staying."

"Hotel."

Georgette Coldfield now turned to Gamadge again, but Miss Smyth was not taken into conversation anywhere else. She sat quietly eating her frozen custard and fruit, quite ignored. She simply hadn't been able to stay at home among the ruins of her party. Waterton, the great old, thought Gamadge, was perfectly capable of thinking she would have a fine time up here; Susan had thought only for him. But the elders were not doing anything for the little Smyth girl.

Don't worry, thought Gamadge, she isn't going to get him back again.

But what a beating for her to take, just to be able to look at him now and then—without raising her head, an upward glance that he wouldn't notice or have to respond to. And she wasn't by any means the clinging vine type, either—perhaps he was her only weakness.

She had a firm mouth—a little thin—and a good shape of head, and plenty of width of skull. Not a fool by any means.

Mrs. Coldfield was speaking to Agnes. "We'll have coffee here, Agnes; we'll be going straight down to the game room."

Gamadge said, "I mustn't get

By Elizabeth Daly Distributed by King Features Syndicate

into a game, I have to dash for home no matter what the weather's like."

"The rain stopped, sir," said Agnes confidentially.

"Oh, has it? That's good. But Mrs. Coldfield, I was to have a look first at the relics, you know; up attic."

Ames asked, highly amused, "you really meant it? I'll take you myself."

"We'll all go up," declared Susan. Zelma Smyth murmured, "Susie and I used to dress up in the clothes until they had to lock the trunks. I wore that dress lots of times." The motion of her head indicated Serene's portrait. "I couldn't get into it now; tiny little waist, and those slippers—there's nothing to them. I don't know how they stayed on."

"Perfect ladies didn't walk around in them," said Ames. "How glad I am, Mr. Gamadge, that you will only know her as she is there. She ended quite mummified, you know, and not quite a human piece of decoration either: more like the remains of a bird of prey. Now Ira, don't frown, you know all about it."

Mrs. Coldfield rose, everybody rose. They went out into the hall and climbed the wide staircase—two flights and then they were in the upper hall. There was the third floor back, its door open, and another open door next to it; the Glendon Coldfield suite, empty as a tomb. No more Glendon Coldfields. What was the matter with all these people? They never even glanced that way, and only one of them was a murderer.

A big attic extended across the front of the house, with windows overlooking the drive. It looked tight and dry, and it was crowded with trunks, furniture and pictures: huge Saratoga trunks, little hoop-lidded trunks, heavy walnut dressers and chests of drawers, a towering headboard and footboard that had once been assembled into a double bed, pale-blue satin chairs and ottomans, engravings in pale-blue velvet frames. One dresser reached the low ceiling, with a full-length mirror between little marble-topped sets of drawers. There was a set of ornate steel fire irons and a painted fire-screen.

Ames stood in the middle of the place with extended arms. "Serene as she lived. Note the quart-sized perfume bottles, and the glove-box like an infant's coffin—to hold those long, long gloves unwrinkled."

Zelma Smyth had gone over to the row of trunks, and was trying the lid of one. "It's still locked."

"No, no," said Mrs. Coldfield impatiently, "that's full of junk of ours now."

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

Evertime the British Labor government survives a close vote, some of our boys shiver and say, "there but for the framers of the Constitution go us!"

The difference between the British system and ours is they have a portable premier and dispensable deputies. This permits an honest difference of opinion 24 hours a day including Sundays.

Under our system we take one deep breath every four years and hold our heads under water until the next beauty pageant.

The question is, which offers the greater opportunity to be wrong... a four-year crystal ball or a daily subscription to a tip sheet?

We are looking into the matter of a President serving no more than two terms. The Republicans are very much interested in this as they haven't had one since Mickey Rooney was a child star.

But, even if the states ratify the amendment, it will not affect the incumbent. Not much does.

Inside WASHINGTON MARCH OF EVENTS

Connally's Move Avoids Defeat of Troop Plan

Marine Corps May Be Increased to 400,000

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—There was a practical reason behind the compromise in which Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally (D), Texas, agreed to let the armed services committee join his group in deciding the "troops to Europe" issue. Connally gained some extra votes by the maneuver.

The Texan had not overlooked the fact that Senator Walter F. George (D), Georgia, the next-ranking Democrat on the T-6 foreign relations committee, favored putting a specific limit on the number of United States troops sent to Europe. This could have meant a defeat for Connally's proposal to go on record for a troop commitment without a stated limit.

However, shrewd old "Tawn" knew that the armed services committee, fully informed on the military situation, would be less likely to tie the hands of the Joint Chiefs of Staff or the President with such a limitation.

So, heading off a showdown vote on the Senate floor, Connally proposed that both committees consider the troops resolution.

● MARINES—Congressional sources say there is a good chance for enactment of the bill to enlarge the Marine Corps from 166,000 to 400,000 men and give the top Leatherneck a place on the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

However, the measure, offered by Senator Paul H. Douglas (D), Illinois, and backed by other senators, probably will be set aside until Congress completes work on "priority" legislation. Backers of the bill point out that the administration is hardly in a position to oppose it. President Truman, who found it necessary to apologize for his reference to the Marines as a mere "police force" with a "propaganda machine equal to Stalin's," would arouse even more furious Devil Dog wrath were he to veto the Douglas bill.

Many members of Congress feel that the Marines have been bypassed in the general arms buildup and they are certain to support the Douglas bill as an "equalizer."

● ALASKAN DEFENSE—Alaskan air defenses are being built up against a possible Russian attack in event of World War III. Military authorities recently revealed that Alaska soon will have two full Air Force divisions on duty.

The newly-activated Tenth Air Division has set up its headquarters at Elmendorf Air Force base. This unit is to have charge of co-ordination and control of air defense in the Anchorage and southern Alaska area.

Another air division, the Eleventh, will be activated early this year, probably within a few weeks. The Eleventh Division will be used at Ladd Field and guard the northern approaches to Alaska.

The purpose of these two new command set-ups, according to Air Force leaders, is to knit the aerial defense of the northern territory into a stronger and more centrally controlled program.

● DRAFT—The man who almost brought the draft to a halt in 1941, just a few months before Pearl Harbor, will lead the fight in the House against inducting 18-year-olds. He is Rep. Dewey Short (R), Missouri, top-ranking minority member of the House armed services committee.

In 1941, Short sponsored a motion to kill extension of the draft law, which was enacted in 1940 for a one-year period. His motion failed by one vote. The Missourian has said he is "unalterably opposed" to drafting 18-year-olds. He insists they are too young and not needed.

Best guess is that the House will compromise, possibly voting for inductions at the age of 18 years and six months, with a proviso that a half-year's training must follow induction.

Church And Community Theme Explored During Interdenomination Meet

First EUB Hosts Parley

An interdenominational meeting with representatives from many groups in the community was held Friday evening in the service center of Circleville First Evangelical United Brethren church.

The meeting was opened by Gladys Noggle, president of the Women's Society of World Service, who introduced the guests and directed a short business session.

Mrs. Frank Hawkes leader for the evening opened the program using the theme, "We Explore Our Community."

Mrs. Hawkes said that "if you want to build a fire, use friction; if you want to build a community, use cooperation; and if you want Life spelled with a capital L, use love."

Devotions were opened by group singing and a scripture reading by Mrs. Kelly Alderman. Mrs. Ezra Pritchard led the group in prayer.

A reading, "Thy Leader," was given by Mrs. Hawkes followed with songs by the girls chorus of Circleville Second Baptist church.

Taking part in a discussion, "The Church in Our Community," were Mrs. Ronald Nau, Mrs. John Stevenson, Mrs. Clarence Radcliffe and Mrs. Paul Dawson.

The devotionals were closed with prayers from Mrs. Ralph Bennington and Mrs. Carl Wilson.

Nat C. Lefko was introduced by the leader as the speaker for the evening.

Lefko said that "we have an obligation to both God and man."

He illustrated his remarks by pointing out that the first five of the Ten Commandments deal with man's relationship to God and the last five directs his relationship with man.

He said, "We need neighborliness in our community. We should be friendly to strangers."

He also stressed that "Christians must feel it their duty to live for their country."

Lefko closed his address by saying, "In order to have peace on earth we must not be divided."

Mrs. Hawkes gave a concluding thought:

"A sincere follower of Christ finds his concern in making his community more Christian." Closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Montford Kirkwood Jr.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ray Johnson, Mrs. John Kerns, Mrs. C. O. Kerns, Mrs. Carlos Brown and Mrs. James Trimmer.

Christian Home Society Holds Dinner Meeting

Mr. and Mrs. George Schleich of East Ohio street were hosts to Christian Home Society of Christ Lutheran church at a covered dish dinner Sunday evening.

Mrs. Paul Thompson presided at the business meeting and presented the devotional service.

In charge of the program were Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Davis who presented Judy List, Carol Kern, Betty Krimmel, Mrs. Willard Duddleson, and Mrs. Paul Thompson in several musical selections and readings.

Sunday Dinner Party Is Held

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stevenson Jr. and family of Circleville Route 3 were Ralph Stevenson and Mrs. James Wells and sons of Ashville.

Calling in the Stevenson home Sunday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Roliff Wolford and sons of Circleville Route 3.

Grange Books Debate Program

A debate between Mrs. Robert Peters and Clarence Forshey will feature the meeting of the Scioto Valley Grange.

Meeting in the Grange hall at 8 p. m. Tuesday they will debate on the subject "Resolved: That a woman's love is stronger than man's."

Washington Grange Meets

Washington Grange met Friday evening for the meeting and valentine program with David Bolender presiding.

The evening was spent playing games and contests. A "poke" lunch was served by Mrs. Leroy May and her committee.

Ashville Club Readies Parley

The postponed meeting of Ashville Garden Club will be held in Community Hall at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

M. E. Noggle, historian and banker of Circleville, will show slides and speak to the group.

COOKBOOK of the WEEK

From the Collection of 24 of THE WORLD'S GREATEST COOKBOOKS

SPONSORED BY THIS NEWSPAPER

"300 Ways to Serve Eggs," the tenth cookbook in The Circleville Herald's series of twenty-four cookbooks being made available to The Circleville Herald's readers, has just been released. Like the earlier cookbooks in the series, Snacks, Leftovers, Cakes, Poultry, Pies, Soups, Salads, Meat, and Fish, the Egg Book covers one single subject of cooking and covers it thoroughly in such a way that the beginning cook is given specific instructions and the experienced homemaker will find hosts of ideas and improved methods to round out her cooking procedure. Luscious photographs of temptingly arranged food are used provocatively, making it almost imperative to try new recipes and attractive ways of serving food.

Eggs can be commonplace food, but here is one of many ideas for varying this nourishing fare:

EGGS AND SPINACH

2 quarts spinach
4 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
6 hard-cooked eggs
1 cup Tomato Sauce

Wash spinach, cook, drain and add butter and seasonings. Arrange 2 nests of spinach on a small platter and place 3 eggs in each nest. Serve with tomato sauce. Serves 6.

Use other cooked greens instead of spinach, if desired.

And here is still another of the many ideas in the Egg Book. BOILED EGGS WITH DUMPLINGS AND VEGETABLES

6 soft or medium-cooked eggs
1 head cauliflower
2 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
3/4 cup milk (about)
Stock or water, Meated butter

Remove shells from soft or medium-cooked eggs. Break cauliflower into flowerets and cook in boiling salted water until tender. To prepare dumplings sift flour, baking powder and salt into mixing bowl. Add egg and enough milk to make a rather stiff batter. Mix thoroughly. Drop into boiling salted water or stock and cook closely covered for 12 to 15 minutes. Arrange dumplings in center of large platter, reheat eggs in stock, alternate vegetables and egg as a border around dumplings. Serve with melted butter, hot Tomato Sauce or some of the stock. Sprinkle with minced parsley or garnish with parsley or cress. Serves 6.

Onions, asparagus, peas, broccoli or carrots may be used instead of cauliflower.

To obtain your copy of the Egg Book or the earlier books of the series, present 15 cents for each book to your independent grocery in Circleville.

Darby Meets Scioto For Jr. Title

Tourney Finals Due Saturday

Darby and Scioto Township cagers advanced into the finals of the Pickaway County junior high school basketball tournament Saturday in Jackson Township school.

Both teams earned victories in their semifinals matches Saturday with one-point margins over their respective foes.

In the opening game, Darby advanced into the championship bracket with a thrilling 21-20 victory over Ashville Bronco juniors.

Swinging into the second game, Williamsport was unseated from tournament defender position when Scioto Buffalo juniors handed them a 27-26 loss.

Darby juniors will meet Scioto juniors at 8:30 p. m. next Saturday in the Jackson gymnasium for the tournament championship, while Ashville and Williamsport will meet at 7:30 p. m. for the consolation battle.

IN THE DARBY Ashville game, Ashville led through the first three periods with quarter-end scores of 8-4, 12-6 and 15-14.

After approaching the lead by one point at the three-quarter mark, Darby tied the score at 20-all with 20 seconds of playing time remaining.

With 15 seconds to go, Darby's Glenn Liff was fouled and proceeded to make the game-winning charity toss. An Ashville player was fouled later by Darby as the final second ticked off, but the Bronco player failed to connect on his charity toss.

Liff led scoring in the match by tallying eight points for his winning Darby aggregation, while Ashville's scoring was paced by Dale Burris and Roger Harris with six points each.

In the next semifinal thriller, Scioto's junior aggregation led strongly in the first half of the game by 9-5 and 15-11, although Williamsport rallied in the third frame to tally a 21-20 advantage.

Scioto's Pete Martin was responsible for his team's early lead by collecting all of Scioto's nine points in the opening round. Williamsport maintained its one-point lead through the fourth quarter until the last 15 seconds of play.

AFTER STALLING the ball for 25 of the last 40 seconds, Williamsport lost the ball and Scioto's Charles Kershner connected on a field goal attempt to give his team the victory.

Saturday's last-minute victory was the second of the tournament for Scioto, which passed its first round test with a 30-29 victory over Atlanta in the last 15 seconds of the game.

Pete Martin was high scorer for the winning Scioto team in the contest with a total of 11 points, while Williamsport's scoring effort was paced by Virgil Anderson with a total of 12.

Summaries of both games are as follows, with player's name, number, of field goals, free throws and total points listed in that order:

ASHVILLE — Trone 0-3-3; Burris 3-0-6; B. Harris 2-2-6; R. Harris 1-0-2; Brown 0-0-0; Pettibone 1-1-3; Hollenback 0-0-0; Totals 7-6-20.

Yankees Sign Joe Page Again

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—Fireman Joe Page, baseball's best odd-year relief hurrier, is all signed up for 1951 today and "ready to go."

The New York Yankee left-hander signed his contract with the Bombers yesterday, saying "I'm well satisfied."

Page, who received an estimated $30,000 for his services in 1950, reportedly was forced to take a cut in salary.

Page has had a rather bizarre career. He helped pitch the Yankees to pennants in 1947 and 1949, but had disappointing seasons in 1948 and 1950.

Norway Skater Retains World's Speed Crown

DAVOS, Switzerland, Feb. 12—Norway's dynamic Hjalmar Andersen is the world speed-skating champion for the second straight year.

Andersen glided through the snow and rain yesterday to defend successfully his crown in the international competition which included 11 nations. Germany and Japan were represented for the first time since the war. The U. S. was not represented.

The Norwegian ace clinched his title by winning the 10,000-meter race after placing second in the 1,500-meter event. Andersen won the 5,000-meter race Saturday.

He finished with a point total of 200.147. Second place in the overall competition went to Britain's John Cronshey with 204.033. Kornel Pajor, the exiled Hungarian who once held the world title, was third with 205.248.

Andersen's winning time in the 10,000-meter event was 19 minutes, 51 and eight-tenths seconds. Henry Wahl of Norway was second and Cronshey was third.

Wim Vandervoort of Holland won the 1,500-meter event in two minutes, 17 and seven-tenths seconds.

BILL DEADLINE NEARING

Belt Conveyor Is Booked For Hearing In Assembly

COLUMBUS, Feb. 12—"Deadline day" in the house, and the start of committee hearings on the belt conveyor bill in the senate, highlight today's action as the Ohio Legislature begins its seventh week.

The house has scheduled an unusual afternoon session in addition to its regular night meeting because of the huge number of bills to be dumped into the hopper. After today no more bills may be introduced in the lower chamber without unanimous consent.

The senate is supposed to have the same rule, but disregards it completely by granting "unanimous consent" automatically. As a result, bills continue to be sponsored in the senate almost up to the closing day of the session.

At last session's "deadline day," 277 bills were introduced in the house on the one day, while the senate accounted for 52 more for a day's total of 329.

AFTER TONIGHT'S session, the senate judiciary committee will begin consideration of the bill sponsored by its chairman, Sen. Carl Sheppard (R-Akron) to grant the right to condemn land for right of way to a belt conveyor line between Lake Erie and the Ohio river.

Proponents will be heard tonight, tomorrow, and Wednesday if necessary, with all other business shuttled aside for the week. Next week the committee will swing back to other business, but on the week of Feb. 26 the entire calendar again will be given over to the "rubber railroad," with opponents—principally the railroads—having their say.

Backers of the proposal hope to build a $210 million, 130-mile overland conveyor belt to haul coal, iron ore and limestone between Lorain and Lake Erie and East Liverpool on the Ohio river.

They figure the belt would pay for itself in less than 2 years in savings from rail freight rates. However, their project is stymied unless they can be assured of public utility status—which the bill would give them—so they could be certain of having a right of way. Otherwise a single landholder could block the entire project.

The conveyor belt, which would take to the air overhead, found a new legislative rival, however, in a bill to transport coal underground.

THE BILL TO GIVE the same rights to coal pipelines was introduced last Thursday by Sen. Donald Rolf (R-Hamilton).

Under the pipeline proposal, coal would be ground up and mixed with water at the mines and the resulting liquid pumped through the lines. At the receiving end it would be dried and ready for market.

Last week, the sixth week of the session, 148 bills were introduced in the house and 37 in the senate. This made 446 measures sponsored in the lower chamber and 135 before the senators to date.

The week's total for both branches, however, probably will be exceeded in the house alone today and tonight.

Local Marine Promoted After Finishing Boot

Marine Pfc. Forrest Kiser, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kiser of Circleville Route 3, was promoted to his present rank when he was graduated from boot camp last month.

Kiser climaxed his recruit training by winning the marksman medal on the rifle range when he fired a score of 200 out of a possible 250 during his weapons training.

During the last eight weeks of recruit training, as a result of field experience and classroom lectures, the new Marine has become well versed in such military subjects as precision drill, first aid, hygiene, and field tactics.

In addition to firing the famed Garand rifle for qualification, Kiser fired other infantry weapons such as the .45 caliber pistol, carbine, and Browning automatic rifle. He also witnessed demonstration firing of the machine gun, mortar and flame thrower.

Kiser enlisted in the Marine Corps Nov. 16, 1950. He was a recent employee of C. B. Lair of Circleville where he was a farmer.

Immediately following his boot camp graduation, he was given a ten-day leave, after which he was transferred from Parris Island, S. C., to Camp LeJeune, N. C., and has been assigned to duty with the Second Marine Division.

He is serving in the famed Tenth Marine Regiment as a field artillery cannoneer.

Helpful Hints To Taxpayers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—Medical, dental and related expenses may be deducted by the taxpayer in computing his taxable income. But this is only to the extent that they exceed five percent of his income. And they must be genuinely essential.

Internal Revenue Bureau officials explain that travel costs may be deducted as medical expenses in cases where the taxpayer is traveling on orders of a doctor and to a particular place where he will receive treatment. They say a trip to Florida merely on a doctor's "suggestion" is not deductible. If a person earning $5,000 a year pays out more than five percent, or $250, for doctor's bills, operations, hospitalization, medicines, glasses, crutches, braces, hearing aides, dentists' charges, etc., he may deduct the excess. But any reimbursement he receives from hospitalization plans will cut down the deductible amount.

Big 4 Parley Answer Readied

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—The United States, Britain and France worked today on final acceptance of a Russian request for an early March Paris Big Four deputy foreign ministers' meeting.

The note expressing the Western Allies' willingness to hold a conference is expected to be dispatched to Moscow in a few days.

The Soviets had asked a conference, to be confined to discussion of German rearmament. The Western Powers, particularly the U.S., demanded that the agenda be expanded to include worldwide threats to peace.
